Lounsbury Lingo

You will notice a wide variety of surname spellings associated with the Lounsbury Tree. The most common spelling is “Lounsbury” though “Lounsberry” and “Lounsbery” are also prevalent. In 99% of researched cases, Canadians and Americans with these surname spellings are linked by common ancestors: Richard Lounsbury and Elizabeth (Pennoyer) Lounsbury of what is now Rye, NY, who were married there in 1670. There are many other surname variations who fit our extended family tree, including Lansbury (though apparently not the famous actress Angela Lansbury), Lainspeary, and Lonsberry.

For simplicity, we use the letter “L” to denote the surname regardless of its spelling. Hence the phrasing “L” Tree at the top of this page.

From Rodolphus Lounsbury to my Grandmother
by Bob Fraser

Rodolphus(7) Lounsbury is descended from Richard(1) Lounsbury and Elizabeth Pennoyer of Rye, Westchester County, New York via John(2), Isaac(3), Isaac(4), Robert(5), and Townsend(6). Rodolphus was born 22 January 1810 in Upper Canada. He married Hannah Dochstader (born 22 May 1814 in Caister Township, Lincoln County, Ontario in the early 1830’s. There is some discussion about Hannah’s name, both with variant spellings (Doxator, Docksteader and Doxteader) and as a totally different name (Letz.) My grandmother was in her late teens when they died and recalled the name as Dochsteader (whatever the spelling), although it could have been a second marriage for Hannah. Probably Hannah Letz married Richard Lounsbury of Caistor, Ontario. Hannah Dochstader would have been about 18 when she married Rodolphus.

Rodolphus and Hannah both died in Mersea Township (now Leamington), Ontario in 1901, she on 23 February and he on 6 October; they were linked to Wheatley and the Wheatley paper carried their obituaries. They were living with their son Burwell (misspelled “Basil” in the 1901 census) when they died. Their single tombstone still stands in the Erie Cemetery in Wheatley and is easily readable and the spelling of his name used here is taken from that tombstone (The 1901 census listed him as “Randolphus.”) Several other Lounsburys are buried in that corner of the cemetery including their sons William Cyrus, Ephriam, Murray and Asa Burwell. Rodolphus and Hannah set up housekeeping in Grimsby Township, Lincoln County, Ontario and most of their twelve children were born there.

--William Cyrus (22 January 1834 – 22 January 1903)
--Ephriam L. (15 January 1837 – 24 January 1922)
--Ransom (September 1838 {13 in 1851 census} – ? {alive in 1927 in Glendale, California})
--Sylvia Ann (“Sibby”) (18 March 1840 – lived into her 80’s)
--Henry (8 September 1841 – 10 February 1927 in Detroit, Michigan)
--Murray (18 January 1844 – 12 May 1926 in Chatham, Ontario)
--Amirida Elizabeth (28 September 1845 – 30 lived into her 80’s)
--Mary Jane (13 September 1847 – lived into her 80’s)
--Hiram Stafford (26 November 1849 in Hamilton, Ontario – 20 December 1934 in Dryden, Ontario, buried in the Dryden Cemetery, tombstone disintegrated)
--Adolphus (28 June 1852 – 1934 in Chatham, Ontario, buried in the Maple Leaf Cemetery.
--Asa Burwell (28 December 1855 – 22 November 1937 in Leamington, Ontario)
--Townsend Adelbert (27 April 1858 – lived into his 80’s)

Two of the children of William Cyrus Lounsbury and Mary Jane née Shaw died young and their headstones remain in Erie Cemetery in Wheatley:
--Enoch Burwell (14 January 1860 – 23 February 1863)
--George Ephriam (Oct 1874 – 15 April 1877)

My great-grandfather was the ninth child, Hiram Stafford Lounsbury. He moved to Elmwood, Tuscola County in the “thumb” of Michigan after the census of 1870. He married 15-year-old Ellen Jane Morse (b. 1 July 1856 in Delevan, NY to Asa Evans Morse and Esther Lovira née Frisby) in Gagetown, Michigan by Justice Joseph Gage on 4 May 1872. She had been living with her father and step-mother Mary née Waite (her mother had died soon after giving birth to Ellen’s sister in 1860) in Elmwood, Michigan. All through her life, she was a devoted Methodist and a leader among the women in each church they joined. Eight children came from their union:

--Frank Wesley (21 February 1875, Elmwood – 27 June 1964 in Vancouver, British Columbia)
--Elva Izara (25 July 1877, Elmwood – 27 March 1887 in Tamarisk, Manitoba)
--George Henry (25 July 1879, Elmwood – 3 May 1964 in Richmond, British Columbia)
--Ida Gladys (22 May 1882, Wheatley, Ontario -- ?)
--Laura Dell (17 May 1885, Wheatley – February 1967 in Pinellas, Florida)
--Leander Morse (3 Oct 1893 Elmwood, Michigan – 3 Oct 1894 in Tamarisk, Manitoba)

Hiram loved his pipe, quarter-horses, and to hunt; in the late 1880’s, he moved the family from Michigan to Oxdrift, Ontario, because the hunting was better. Genesee, or “Jenny” as she was known, recalls him hunting at night when they were in a home just being built. The front door was just a blanket that winter. One morning after he had been out hunting bear unsuccessfully all night he came home to find bear tracks right up to the entrance. He was a rigid father, a “tyrant,” not allowing seventeen-year-old Jennie to travel to Europe for education when she had an opportunity. Many decades later, Jennie recalled the “fireworks” that happened when Hiram caught Gladys and Laura sneaking out to a dance. The three girls all married before they were twenty. Jennie was eighteen when she married William Henry “Harry” Fraser in Hilton, Manitoba on 5 August 1891. They had six children:

--Mervin Everett (25 May 1892, Elkhorn, Manitoba – 1 October 1934 in Dryden, Ontario)
--Lawrence Adelbert “Del” (26 May 1900, Grandview, Manitoba – 29 July 1972 in Burnaby, British Columbia)
--Clarence “Carney” Alvin (10 September 1904, Grandview, Manitoba – 5 October 1989 in New Westminster, British Columbia)
--Hazel Grace (14 August 1906, Weyburn, Saskatchewan – 16
--Glenn Douglas Elroy (26 September 1912, Weyburn, Saskatchewan – 31 May 2004 in Abbotsford, British Columbia)

As the variety of birthplaces demonstrates, the family followed Harry as he found work. He purchased property in several towns. One six-room hotel had an offset two-story outhouse with a walkway crossing from the second story for winter night time usage. He worked on the railroad in an area that saw the loss of a man for every mile of track and sold Raleigh products. He was remembered as a man with a smile on his face. His sales took him by horse and wagon following the clearing by the rails. When he saw a path into the woods, he followed it to a single cabin. Sometimes he was so cold that the residents had to lift him off the wagon and carry him inside; after an hour he would be warm enough to do business. One day a wildcat jumped down from an overhanging tree onto his wagon. Harry took the axe by his side and dispatched the beast, flinging it off quickly so the blood would not soak down into the Raleigh products. When the crash of the Great Depression came, he had $9,000 out in credit. The company foreclosed on all his properties; fortunately, Jennie had one in her name and the family moved to the “Blair House” in Dryden, Ontario. This small hotel had a single stove that accepted six-foot logs. Through much of the summer, Harry took his wagon out into the swamps and cut wood for the winter. When his youngest son was almost 20, he accompanied his father just once and found the work exhausting.

Jennie worked all through the years as well. In some towns, she was the postmistress and telegrapher. Their home was never “Grandma and Grandpa’s house,” but always “Grandma’s house,” according to cousins who lived with them in the 1920’s and 1930’s. Many of the family lived with them or nearby, even when they had families of their own. When Harry was selling Raleigh products, their home became a storehouse and Jennie often sold goods to customers who came by. Once in the mid-1920’s, an Indian family had come to purchase goods. One of Jennie’s granddaughters was pre-school age and living there. The Indian family had only sons, but it was the women who were expected to do a great deal of the work. The mother asked how much Jennie was willing to sell her granddaughter for; she needed another pair of hands to do the hard work around the house! Her parents both lived at Jennie’s house for their last days; her mother died in Limerick, Saskatchewan in 1927 and her dad in Dryden in 1934. He preferred to sleep on the porch at Blair House, even in December, and died in his sleep.

When Carney took a job in New Westminster in the late thirties, his parents joined him. He was still single when he bought the house he and his family would live in for decades. Harry Fraser continued his hard physical work to his last days. Soon after Carney had bought the house, his dad went out back to dig up the very rough half-acre out back of the house, turning the sod over shovelful-by-shovelful all that autumn day.
That evening he had a heart attack. The doctor advised bed rest and that he eliminate the heavy salting of his food and stop smoking his pipe. He refused the cessation of his two pleasures and also refused to use a bedpan. He died in the loo in 1942. Jennie survived him by almost twenty-five years. Most of the time, she lived in Carney’s house, even after he married Hilma and they had three children. She did not transition easily to the idea that this was not her house. She expected to be taken out for her beloved car rides and for ice cream.
She loved to travel. She traveled to Dryden, Ontario in the summer of 1948 to visit family. In the early 1950’s, she took the train out to Michigan to visit Morse relatives in “the thumb” and then on to visit her granddaughter Francie with her family in New Jersey. She arrived at the small train station as a great storm was brewing. Francie had to drive over twenty miles each way through some rather undeveloped land. The wind was high, the rain fell hard, and the thunders rolled; Jennie loved it all, repeating, “Oh Francie, what hath God wrought!” She entertained Francie’s pre-school daughters by naming squirrels playing in the yard and spinning fanciful stories about them each day. In 1962, she was moved, rather unwillingly, into the Salvation Army’s Sunset Lodge in Burnaby. She made one more trip East in 1963, to visit her youngest son Glenn in Pennsylvania. Her mind remained sharp – she could still cite Longfellow’s “The Wreck of the Hesperus:”

\text{It was the schooner Hesperus,} \\
\text{That sailed the wintry sea;} \\
\text{And the skipper had taken his little daughter,} \\
\text{To bear him company.}

-- and 21 more verses.

Early in January 1967, Jennie fell and broke her hip. When she found out that she was to live the rest of her days in bed, she decided that it was not worth it; she pulled out her IV’s, refused food, and died that same month.

End of Part One.

Murray Barnet will officiate with the assistance of Ted Smith, followed by interment at Evergreen Cemetery, Lynedoch. The family would appreciate that anyone wishing to donate (payable by cheque) do so to a charity of choice.
The Journey Begins.....
In memory of my father-in-law Daniel Lounsbury
By Melina Lounsbury

I remember my father-in-law, Daniel Lounsbury, mentioning to me that his mother, Ella Tobin Lounsbury, kept a scrapbook with old photos and newspaper articles. Along with my husband on one of our Thanksgiving trips to Falconer, New York I asked to see the scrapbook. From a desk Dan pulled out a scrapbook with a tattered cover and loose pages. I carefully turned the pages and my curiosity began. It was filled with newspaper articles of her children’s achievements, letters written by her sons during World War II, and school photos, she kept hand-made Mother’s Day cards from her boys, programs from musical recitals, report cards from college that her sons attended and old postcards from their travels.

I read one letter, in particular, that was signed by my father-in-law dated: July 8, 1941.

“The day Daniel reaches his 21st birthday he is to receive $100 in his bank book providing he has never touched a glass of beer or liquor or smoked cigarettes or used tobacco. He is placed on his honor to his mother and father.

P.S. In case of sickness, allowances will be made.

Signed Ella Lounsbury and D.W. Lounsbury

On my honor to God and His Blessed Mother

Signed Daniel Lounsbury

I turned to my father-in-law and asked him if he received his $100. “Of course” he said with a proud smile. From that point on, I needed to know more about his family. I asked him several questions. Who do you remember, do you keep in touch with the other Lounsbury’s. His answers were simple, “I remember a few relatives, and no I have not kept in touch with the relatives”.

I returned the scrapbook back to the desk drawer and kept a little reminder in my head to where the scrapbook was at for the future.

On August 27, 2003 my father-in-law passed away suddenly. His death occurred during our summer visits to Falconer. This time, it was special visit, but bittersweet, as his new grandson, Patrick, eight months-old was visiting his home. After the funeral, I kept thinking about the missed opportunities that my son, Patrick, would have had with his grandpa. Moments that grandparents have with their grandchildren.

Due to health issues and concerns, the family decided that my mother-in-law would move out of the house, that she and Dan raised their children. Contents of the home would be given away, kept, or thrown out. On the day that my husband was going to help clean out the house, I asked for one thing from the house. Not the family jewelry, or furniture, or the knick-knacks. The one special thing that captured my curiosity was Ella Lounsbury’s scrapbook. I was very interested in the history, memories and personal thoughts that Ella kept her in scrapbook. It would be a wonderful thing that I can share with my children to let them know what type of person their grandpa was.

I am sure that if Dan was still alive today, he would truly be amused by the Lounsbury Tree, the lost family members that I have reconnected during my genealogy research and the enlighten stories from the family members.
What's In Your Wallet?

By Melina Lounsbury

You may have heard the commercial that asks you “what’s in your wallet?” If you are like most people today, you probably have a couple of credit cards, old receipts, a few photos, and some old torn one dollar bills.

The things my husband’s grandfather, Daniel Walter Lounsbury, had in his wallet was beyond the ordinary for these days and a little more special. We received several items from my father-in-law’s home when he passed away in 2003. To my surprise I had in my possession his father’s wallet. My father-in-law kept it in the original condition, with all the items still inside the wallet. It felt like I was opening a very special gift. I began to imagine what type of person Daniel was from just the contents of his wallet.

He was a very religious man; he had prayer cards, a prayer that his wife Ella had written, which Daniel must have read often, due to the condition, of being folded and unfolded. His membership cards to Saint Anthony’s Guild and Knights of Columbus. As a lifetime employee (since 1904) to the B & O Railroad Company, the wallet held his employee card, a Safety First B & O card; a Benefit Association of Railway Employees card and a folded receipt for a room that he rented as an engineer from Salamanca, New York to Du Bois, PA. He also had in his possession a Civilian Defense Auxiliary Group card and his registration card dated 25 April 1942 for the Selective Service Proclamation of the United States.
There were no overdrawn MAC receipts, or a dozen credit cards, or other items that make our lives more complicated and overspent. Rather, items that a man carried, that describes him as simple, hardworking, religious and devoted to his family.

Cattaraugus Lounsburys

Editor’s Note: Melina Lounsbury has added the following new information and corrections to the Cattaraugus Lounsbury information in the last issue of The Lounsbury Tree. Falconer Community

Loses Special Friend

My office phone rang early Thursday night. On the other end was Dan Stimson, Falconer High School Class of ’67.

The reason for his phone call was to talk about his former track and field coach, mentor and friend, Dan Lounsbury, who died Wednesday at 76.

“He was just a supportive guy and made track fun,” Stimson said.

In fact, in 31 years at Falconer, Lounsbury coached many fine athletes in wrestling, track and cross country, but there weren’t many better than Stimson, who demonstrated from an early age the strength and skill that would ultimately turn him into one of the best weightlifters in the state by the time he graduated.

“Going into track turned out to be a wonderful thing for me,” Stimson said from his Williamsburg, Va., home. “I so enjoyed being with Coach Lounsbury. He made it fun. It was a great relationship. I really looked forward to track practice and, as it turned out, I’ve been going to track practice every day of my life (since).”

Stimson has parlayed his early success in track and field into a career that has spanned more than 30 years, taking him from his undergraduate days at Ohio University to assistant coaching stints at Miami (Ohio) University and the University of Tennessee before landing at the College of William & Mary in the mid-1980s.

During his 18-year tenure at W&M, Stimson, the director of track and field, has coached 53 All-Americans, one Olympian and plenty of strong men’s and women’s teams, making the program one of the best in the East.

“He was really proud of what I did,” Stimson said of Lounsbury. “I don’t think coaches really understand the influence they have over their kids and the way they make the sport enjoyable.”

Stimson recalled Lounsbury being responsible for getting Falconer School Board approval to build a cement circle to throw the shot from. Until then, Stimson and other throwers did so off dirt. Lounsbury also permitted the precocious teen to spend afternoons lifting weights at the Jamestown YMCA under the watchful eye of Harold Leach.

“It was nice he would give me that kind of freedom,” Stimson said. “He trusted me and knew I wasn’t going to just lay around.”

By the time he graduated, Stimson owned school records in the shot (57 feet, 9 inches) and the discus (169-9), which were good enough for sixth and third respectively at the state meet at West Point in the spring of 1967.

Later that year, Stimson began his college career at Ohio University where he eventually became an all-Ohio and Central Collegiate shot champion, as well as a two-time Mid-American Conference champion.

But would all of that have come Stimson’s way without Lounsbury’s guidance and support?

Not likely.

“People know the influence he had,” Stimson said. “I really feel he did a lot of good things at Falconer High School.”

Stimson’s not alone in that assessment.

“He is a man that can’t be replaced,” said Bill Race, former Falconer athletic director and football coach, who began working with Lounsbury in the early 1960s. “Those people that knew Dan had a friend for life and the Falconer community was blessed to have a man like him.

“He was like a father to me and it is a great loss to his family.”

James Lounsberry Reunion

Corabelle and Alton Lounsberry have written that there were 73-75 at the James Lounsberry Reunion held in Scio, New York on the last Sunday in July. They had a Chinese auction, business meeting and dinner. Afterward they took group pictures of each family from the oldest to the youngest.

Corabelle is trying to identify the people in the group photo taken at the Bolivar reunion. If anyone can be of assistance please let us know.

They also advised of several deaths in the family. Alton’s brother Albert, Albert’s son Glen, daughter Louise and son-in-law Clair Cornell. Alton’s brother Clifford’s daughter-in-law, Pat Lounsberry nee Jones and a grandson of Pauline Paffie nee Lounsberry. Alton’s brother James Leland lost his wife and now has leukemia.
2007 LOUNSBURY REUNION

The annual reunion of the descendants of Daniel A. Lounsbury and Carrie Applebee was held on a sunny August 4th, 2007 at the Town of Mamakating Park near Wurtsboro, NY. For many years it had been held at the Mongaup Pond State Park near DeBruce, NY. There were seventy in attendance. The new location seemed to be satisfactory and more easily accessible. Arrangements for the food were for each family unit to bring their own food. On arrival, some families joined others for the meal.

Accommodations at the park included a pool, large green areas for sports, shaded areas for outdoor picnicking, two pavilions to hold either 100 or 200 persons, nearby restrooms, and spacious views of the large park. There is no admission to the park but pavilions need to be rented and reserved weeks in advance. Thanks to Joan Dunn for reserving the smaller pavilion. There was lots of activity at the large pavilion as the Rotary club was serving a pig roast for the public.

Introductions of the various families, and from which son or daughter of Daniel and Carrie's, were done following the meal. Representatives of six of Carrie and Daniel's ten children who grew to adulthood (Esther, George, David Lee, Ralph, Daniel and Willard) were present. The oldest attendee was Joseph Brinckerhoff, 88, husband of Alida Lounsbury. The youngest attendee was Kaylie Cartuccio, 3 months, daughter of Krista Dunn and Jake Cartuccio, granddaughter of Robert Dunn and great granddaughter of Joan Lounsbury Dunn-Lindsay. Joan highlighted a summary of the family history which has been researched over several years; she distributed some copies.

If plans go with tradition of getting the family together, the 2008 reunion will be held on Saturday, August 2. at the Town of Mamakating Park. Save the date and look for the flyer in July.

Expanding the Reunion: The following information is given as a bit more of family history and inviting others to attend. What about Daniel's family and Carrie's family—brothers and sisters? These would be second cousins, two, three and four times removed, to those attending. Here they are:

Daniel's brother, Edward, no descendants; his sister, Antoinette (James Fulton)—several children. Carrie's family—sisters: Ella (Myron Hornbeck), Etta (Walter Dutcher), Florence (Kai Wellendorf from Denmark), Eva (Henry Doll) and one brother, William. If any of the descendants of these brothers and sisters happen to hear about the reunion, they would be most welcome to attend. We just need addresses.

Additional information about the reunion may be obtained from Albert Lounsbury, 390 Church Street, Apt. 105, Saratoga Springs, NY 12866, phone: 518-584-4768, e-mail: albrtlouns@aol.com or Lee Lounsbury, 7 Parkwood Street, Albany NY 12203, phone 518-438-2516, e-mail: Lounsbury2000@aol.com.

LONDESBOROUGH...LOUNSBERRY...LOUNSBURY

Ancestors before Richard came to America:

George Londesborough married Agnes Murton in the Parish of Hackness, Yorkshire, York County, England. He was born ca. 1570.

George's son Richard Londesborough was born October 30, 1619 and died in 1650. Richard's son Richard came to the Colonies and settled in New York Province (Rye, CT, now Rye, NY) before 1672. His will is dated January 20, 1690. When he came to the Colonies, the name was changed to Lounsberry.

His and Elizabeth Pennoyer's children were Sons: Thomas, Michael, Richard, Henry, John and one daughter, Mary. Richard and Elizabeth were married in 1670 as appears below. He is mentioned in the records of Rye, Westchester County, NY as early as 1672. Elizabeth Pennoyer was the daughter of Robert Pennoyer who came from England to the Colonies.

Source of above information: Janice Graham of Woodland PA, dated September 19, 1993 to Albert Lounsbury. Her source was from a woman in the Clearfield County Historical Society Library and Albert Lansberry (sic) of Grambrills MD who has researched it.
The lineage of Alida (Brinkerhoff), Albert, H. James and Joan (Dunn-Lindsay) Lounsbury from Richard Lounsberry who emigrated from England in the mid 1600s and settled in Rye, CT, now Rye, NY.

Beatitudes of a Family Genealogist

Blessed are the great-grandmothers who hoarded newspapers clippings and old letters... For they tell the story of their time.

Blessed are all grandfathers who filed every legal document For this provides proof.

Blessed are grandmothers who preserve family Bibles and diaries. For this is our heritage.

Blessed are fathers who elect officials that answer letters of inquiry. For some, they are the only link to the past!

Blessed are mothers who relate family traditions and legends to the family.

For one of her children will surely remember.

Blessed are the relatives who fill in family sheets with extra data. For them we owe the family history.

Blessed is any family whose members strive for the preservation of records. For theirs is a labor of love.

Blessed are the children who will never say...

"Grandma, you have told that story twice today."

(from Marie Lounsbury)
